The Voice of Vermont runnt lepublicans are jubiliant tothe fact has pened the political part of 1891 with a veldich that into be infounderstood al orrespondence of the Boston Herald whole tery without figures The campaign in Vermont has not at tructed much attention but when the prople went to the polls they returned everdict that cannot be misunderstood The returns at this writing even are not all complete but show that the Pepublicius have mide a clain sweep. The Re-1 ubl can majority will exceed the averpast twenty grard

the result is a stinging behalfe to the party of distruction The people of Vermont like those of other States have had an opportunity by sad experience at preciate the disastrous effects of Den occarie rule and their Svirdict can not be insunderstood on Monday next the people of Maine will have a smale oppositually to express their opinion of the party that has removed the duty entirely from lumber dressed and ardressed that has placed wool and other products of the farm on the free list while those that remain on the dutiable list have been cut to a point where the firmer is deprived of all protection aga net (anadian competition and has necessitated a reduction in wages in order to need the competition that will come as a result of this legislation

When the returns are all in let the condemnation of the party that has legislated in the interest of Canada at the expense of this State be so emphatic that the verdict cannot be misunderstood This is not a year for any misunder standing. The issue is very clearly prewented and every voter should make has duty in the coming election to ente ac individual protest. Vermont has performed her duty grandly Now Mame send back greetings that will prove equally mapicing

Let Us Have An Explanation. The Portland Aryus commenting upon a recent interview with Congressman

Mr Stevens is an embently respectable business man, having had a long and practical experience in the manufacture of woolen goods, and his opisions are worth heeding. Mr Stevens helieves that the Senate bill is a good one In times past the Argus has had a good leal to say about the eminent respectability as well as the profound statesmanship of Grover Cleveland Now it happens that President Cleveland entertains a very different opinion of the tariff bill than that expressed by Mr. Stevens Indeed he has referred to it as a measure reflecting "party perildy and party disa complete abandonment of Democratic principles and in fact so utterly bad that he refused to signit. Now sailt is manifest that the new tariff was not good enough for the President to sign it, will the Argus, which has regarded Cleveland as the leaders of leaders, kindly inform us by what process of reasoning it reaches the concinsion that the bill is good enough for any member of the party to undertake its

Facts and Figures.

Commenting upon the statement of a free trade paper that American woolen manufacturers "have simply dabbled in od played with this great industry" and much more than one hundred years. In the Frees does not doubt that the major-the eighty years from the formation of ity rolled up next Monday will probain the government down to 1860 the capital from Eastport to San Diego that the Reinvested in the business find grown to be but $16,000,000 and the product to have the value of $69,000,000. This was dur-ing a period of intermittent free trade and protection. From 1866 to 1890 there was continuous protection for both woo and woolens. In that period the capital expanded to $325,000,000 and the product to $388,000,000. Thus in thirty years under protection the value of the product became five times larger than it had become in eighty yours without persistent protection the country bad practical free trade from 1850 to 1860, and the capital invested in woolen man Papture increused to that decade only to the extent of $7,000,000 'The country ad high protection from 1880 to 1890 and the capital thus invested increased by £161,000,000 What is the plain in erence from the comparison of these figures That munufacturers have been hampered and discouraged by protection or by the duties upon wool? burely

Has woolen manufacture grown more rapidly in England with free wool than In the United States with dutiable wool In 1860 the wool imported to the British Islands for use in the mills amounted to 121,000,000 pounds In 1890 this consumption had grown to 341,000,000 pounds In 1860 the wood consumed in the United States was $7,000,000 pounds. In 1800 it had expanded to 405,000,000 pounds The British consumption in thirty years increased not quite three times The American consumption in the same time increased nearly five times It is burdly doubtful that in th vear 1892, two years after the Mckinley turult went into operation, American manufacturers produced a larger quan tity of woolen fabrics than was produced in the British Islands, where wool pland no duty Can it, with reason, be urged that American manufacturers, making more woolens than their British rivils, have been 'playing and dabbling with the industry, Having distanced the British manufacturers who started far ahead of them, is there any ground for the allegation that American manufac

Have the American people as a whole obtained any benefit from the promotion of the wool growing and wool manufacturing industries under protection? The farmers galued, for in 1860 they had but 22,000,000 sheep where in 155) they had 50,000,000 | they I aproved the breeds o much that whereas the average weight of the fleece in 1840 was but 1 0 pounds, 1891 it way 5 i pour ds | The presunce here of these great flocks helped also to cheapen the price of ment. At the same time, the price of woolen garments stend-Hy decreased, and their use increased so that while in 1840 under free trade the domestic consumption of wool was four and a half pounds for each person, in 1890 it was ten pounds, or more than three pounds in excess of the consumption in the British (slands where weed is free. The Democratic tariff law is behelpful of, American woolens, and wool in manufacture is as well as wige carn re in wooden Industries with substan

From one who has a fixed income of any kind ought so to regulate his expend fores as to hring them within it. This is a habit which should be inculcated in the very carliest years. The child with an allowance for its pleasures be it ever so small, should never be suffered to exceed it or to draw upon the future. The youth should be taught to matergo self denial rather than to borrow the money to obtain a gratification. There is more true independence in this lesson than in hundreds of short in the borrow than in hundreds of short in the scan than in hundreds of short or the carried in the read of the transport of the carried in the sound that means whe income the transport of the table or for dress or for the vanity of computing with rigidal res and keeping up a cortain style of living or for private indulgence of any kind or carried in their child an hon rable determination to own no man any thing—Romona (Cal.) send Mrs Brown the new washerwoman op this morning. I think you will like her. The lady of the house was pusy in the kitchen when the back door was gen ity tauched and a modest quiet looking woman stood without. She was admitted and asked to take a seat. After awille in which she was busy with other things the lady of the house said. Come this way. I il show you. She led the visitor outs into the shich pulled down some tubs and told her to take off her things and tuning quickly, went back into the little un again. In atout two minutes there was tuning quickly, went back into the litch on again. In all our two minutes there was a grand ruction in the shed, and in came the quiet little woman with cyts ablaze. Who do you think I am? I me actub I me surprised at you. I only just called because I me your next neighbor, and I wanted to as you to lend me some baking this until ours came. There was a slam of the door and the swish of sidries. For minutes later a vices was heard at the soreen door. Please, mun. I am sint to wash. It was the original Mrs. Brown—Lewiston Journal.

Rahmaking
Now as to the possibility of producing rein by artificial means it is never safe to jeap what things are pessible and what it things are impossible to man. What the future may bring forth no one can tell the present time however there is no ovidence to show that oven the smallest local shower has been produced artificial ly. Further than that, it is safe to say that po method of producing artificial rain has yet been publicly proposed which suggests to one familiar with the scientific principles involved even a possibility of amores. That such attempts have nother to the official recognition and the financial support of congress is only an other evidence of the gross ignorance of scientific principles which is prevalent among our so called educated men.
